DIFFERENT KINDS OF EYES. - No branch of science has been more thoroughly mastered than optics. The principle of vision must be essentially the same in all eyes, but they differ remarably, according to the habits of the animal. Birds of lofty flight, as the condor, eagles, vultures and carrion seeking prowlers of the feathered race have telescopic vision, and thus they are enabled to look down and discover their unsuspecting victims. As they approach noiselessly from above, the axis of vision changes—shortening, so that they see just as distinctly within one foot of the ground as when at an elevation of one mile in the air.

This fact explains the balancing of a fish-hawk on its pinions half a mile above a still pond; watching for fish. When one is selected down the savage hunter plunges, the focal axis varying with the square of the distance, giving the hawk a distinct view of its intended prey always. As they ascend, then the axis is elongated by a curious muscular arrangement so as to see far again.

Spails have their keen eyes at the extremity of flexible horns, which they can protrude or draw in at pleasure. By winding the instrument round the edge of a leaf or a small stalk, they can see how matters stand on the opposite side. The hammer-headed shark has its wick-ed looking eyes nearly two feet apart. By will effort they can bend the thin edgings of the head on which the organs are located so as to examine the two sides of an object the size of a fully grown codfish.

Flies have immovable eyes. They stand out from the head like half an apple, exceedingly prominent. Instead of being smooth hemispheres, they have an immense number of facets, resembling old fashioned glass watch seals, each one directing the light directly to the optic retina. That explains why they can-not be approached in any direction without secing what is coming.

REFORM IN JAPAN, -Among all the people in these times the Japanese are the most won-derful. In the whole history of the world no people have ever so heartily given themselves to the work of reform. Since the fall of the Tycoon and the resurrection of the Mikado, the Tycoon and the resurrection of the Mikado, the work of transformation has been such as to sartle and surprise the nations. It was for a time doubted whether the grand work of reconstruction was not too good to continue. The evil prophets, however, were compelled to shut up, and Japan goes on in her grand reforming up, and Japan goes on in her grand reforming was an open of the Mikado, the will be and surprise the nations. It was for a time doubted whether the grand work of reconstruction was not too good to continue. The evil prophets, however, were compelled to shut up, and Japan goes on in her grand reforming was properly to the properly of the career. Our latest news is full of encouragement. The school system of the country is being organized on a broad American basis. Religious toleration has become law. The judicial system is being reconstructed, and the Police Department is being reorganized after the American model. The value of the railroad and the telegraph is fully appreciated, and the money and energy of the country are being freely given for the encouragement of both those agents of modern civilization. If Japan will only persevere in her present course she will soon be the most advanced of all the nations of Asia. India under English rule has, as a reconstructive force, proved a failure. Japan, under the gentle guidance of the United States, promises to be an immense success. May the good work go on. -New York Herald.

THE GREAT "NERVE TUNER."—The Or-chestra says:—"An interesting discovery has, it is stated, been made lately by an Italian. He has hit upon a method by which nerves may be tuned like harp strings, and brought into harmony with each other. His theory is that nervous systems, like musical instruments, are all liable to change of tone, and this change is of little importance if all the nerves change together, as by attention to diet and temperature the evil may be corrected en masse; but when, owing to accident or uneven wear, the general harmony of the nerves is destroyed, a disconnected action is the result, and a special mode of treatment is required, of which he professes to possess the key. He calls himself a 'nerve tuner,' and contracts to keep nerves in order by the month or year. There seems to be no reason why people should not take lessons in 'nerve tuning,' and, like violin performers, acquire themselves the tuning art. Some nerves, like fiddles, want tuning each time they are used, and if every man and woman could screw up his or her nerve fibers as they become relaxed, the world would be saved a vast amount of trouble, for it can not be denied that the principal sufferers from nervous disorders are not those who immediately labor under them, but their friends and acquaintances."

"THE SMITHS."-From a Boston journal (which clipped it from some other paper,) we clip the following, as a matter of interest to the Smith family: John Smith-plain John Smith-is not very high sounding; it does not suggest aristocracy; it is not the name of any hero in die-away nov-els; and yet it is good, strong and honest. Transferred to other languages, it seems to climb the ladder of respectability. Thus in Latin it is Johannes Smithus, the Italian smoohtes it off into Giovanni Smithi; the Spaniards render it Juan Smithus; the Dutchman adopts it as Hans Schmidt; the Freuch flatten it out into Jean Smeet, and the Russian sneezes and barks Jvan Smittowski. When John Smith gets into the tea trade Canton, he becomes Jovan Shimmit; if he clambers about among the Icelanders they say Jahne Smithson; if he trades among the Tuscaroras he becomes Tom Qa Smittia; in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmittiweiski; should he wander among the Welsh mountains, they talk of Jihon Schmidd; when he goes to Mexico he is booked as Joutli F Smitti; if of classic turn he lingers among Greek ruins, he turns Ion Smikton; and in Turkey he is utterly disguised You Seef.

Foreign Trade. - This important theme is pretty much one-sided if we may judge by the introduction of foreign goods at this port during the past week, the total value of which reached the enormous sum of $11.282,162. In the present instance the proportion is enlarged to some extent by the arrival of steamers this week that were due the week before; but the imports are unprecedentedly large while the exports run along in about the usual amount. It is difficult to account for the heavy line of importations just at this time, unless as suggested to one of our interviewing reporters by a leading merchant, it be due to a sudden and unanimous haste on the part of importers to get their goods over unusually early this year, so as to present their offerings to the very first buyers of the Spring trade. But if these goods find a market they reveal an extravance to society and an overtrading in commerce which must inure to our financial discredit one of these days. Already gold has taken a leap to 1131 on the imports of the past week.—N. Y. Herald.

ORGANIC WEAKNESS. Immediately cured and Full Vigor Restored.

This distressing Affection—which renders life miserable and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victims of improper indulgencies. Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadul consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the natural powers are lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise.
